Process

A. Social Preparation - Three types of organizations shall be serviced under the program namely:

- Walk-in clients composed of loose groups of OCWs seeking assistance;
- Existing OCW groups registered with the Cooperatives Development Authority (CDA) or Securities Exchange Commission (SEC);
- OCW groups organized thru the Social Reintegration Programs (SRP).

For client types # 1 & 3, the entry point for organizing shall be socio-cultural factors and not economic considerations. Although the CO may opt to immediately venture into socio-economic endeavor this should not be used to encourage membership to organization. The CDO assigned shall ascertain compliance of the provision. In cases, wherein a group of OCW requested for assistance using socio-economic activities as entry point; the CO shall first implement organizational activities as pre-requisite to qualify for Impact Project Financing.

A participatory action research shall be conducted to identify the pressing needs of the OCWs which will then be validated through group discussions. The output of this activity are the following: organizational profile, community profile, and the organizational development plan. Incorporated therein are the various activities that the group may wish to venture to answer their felt needs.

The first stage of organizational development is core group formation. The CO who signified intention to be organized shall form a core group with assistance from the CDO as facilitator. The core group shall hold series of meeting with its prospective members to formalize their organization. A set of officer shall be elected and sworn into office and shall seek legal personality with the SEC or CDA.

For client type #2, assistance shall depend on specific needs of the group in terms of social preparation.

The social preparation shall be incomplete without appropriate trainings. The CDO together with the organized group shall assess the needs of the organization which can be met through the conduct of training programs. Training programs geared towards developing and strengthening the organization shall include but not limited to Leadership Training, Basic Course on Cooperatives, Group Building Seminars and Program/Project Planning and Development.

B. Application for Accreditation - Interested CO shall apply for accreditation to qualify for assistance under the IRPO. If the group met the criteria for accreditation as stipulated in MOI No. 113, Series of 1991, a certification of accreditation shall be issued by the SRPD.

C. Group Strengthening - As specified in MOI No. 113, Series of 1991, the organization must have conducted organizational activities. This shall serve as benchmark in determining the viability of the group for bigger undertaking. To be included in the assessment are the following factors:

- b. Extent of knowledge on the By-laws and Constitution; and
- c. Involvement/interaction of the general membership.

The cohesiveness of the group may be reinforced through trainings based on the result of the Training Needs Analysis (TNA). A request for training shall be coordinated by the responsible committee with the CDO.

D. Project Documentation and Evaluation - The CDO and the Project Officer (PO) shall assist the CO in the project identification/selection and project feasibility preparation. Initial evaluation to determine project feasibility and social desirability shall be undertaken at the regional level while the final evaluation shall for the project shall be conducted by the ELDD. The capability of the CO to undertake the group project shall be assessed by the SRPD prior to the project's final evaluation. The Project Review Committee (PRC) shall make the final decision based on the recommendation made by the ELDD.
