GUIDELINES FOR MCLE COMPLIANCE OF NEW LAWYERS IN VIEW OF BAR MATTER NO. 1922, S. 2008

The MCLE Governing board in its meeting of February 6, 2008 laid down the guidelines for compliance by new lawyers with the MCLE requirements under section 3 (a) of Bar Matter No. 850. as follows:

Where four (4) months or less remain of current compliance period upon admission or readmission to the Bar the member is not required to comply with the MCLE program requirement for the said compliance period.

Thus, lawyers who pass the Bar when only four (4) months or less remain of the compliance period, are exempted from complying with the MCLE requirement for the said compliance period. They shall comply with MCLE requirement for the next compliance period.

However lawyers who are admitted to the Bar either one (1) year after the start of the current compliance period, or two (2) years after the start of the said compliance period, are required to comply with the MCLE requirements in accordance with the MCLE Governing Board resolution dated October 20, 2004. i.e. those admitted one year after the start of the current compliance period must comply with two-thirds (2/3) of the credit units required (24 c.u.) for that period; while those admitted two (2) years after the start of compliance period should comply with one-third (1/3) of the required credit units (12 c.u.)
