Extending the benefit of the doubt to, and in view of, counsel for private respondents' Manifestation,[1] any further exegesis, as suggested by counsel for petitioners, insofar as the possible outright[2] jettison of his Motion for Reconsideration from the impugned Decision, is now academic.

Even then, Our Decision sufficiently and exhaustively explained why private respondents can hardly be treated as regular employees of petitioners and there were cogent indicators on record to the effect that private respondents were employees of CCS and CRUDIMAR as legitimate job contractors. Thus, to clarify once more the disquisition on the parties' arguments thereon will be an ad infinitum exercise. Verily, Our invocation of Atok, San Miguel Jeepney Sevice and Alviado cases[3] were not squarely addressed by movants on the subject Motion.

Accordingly, We hereby DENY counsel for private respondents' Motion for Reconsideration from the assailed Decision.

SO ORDERED.
