

DBP EMPLOYEES UNION-NATU, PETITIONER VS. DEVELOPMENT BANK OF THE PHILIPPINES AND COURT OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS, RESPONDENTS.

G.R. No. L-30961. January 29, 1975

Ponente: FERNANDO, J.

Read online (full-text search, related cases, audio case brief): <https://batas.org/library/cd5c909201c7/>

FERNANDO, J.:

The question raised in this petition is not devoid of significance. Petitioner labor Union would put in issue the validity of an actuation of the President withdrawing the certification of a labor dispute to respondent Court of Industrial Relations.[1] In its view, once the matter has been referred by the President to such tribunal, then it should be left free to settle the dispute under its authority of compulsory arbitration. Such is not the case at all as contended by respondents. They would rely on the broad executive power vested by the Constitution in the President of the Philippines.[2] Implicit therein, so it is argued, is the authority to withdraw a certification of a labor dispute for under the Industrial Peace Act,[3] the jurisdiction of respondent Court as an agency for compulsory arbitration was considerably curtailed. Their submission then was that the presidential power to certify carries with it the power to withdraw as part of his constitutional function to see to the effective implementation of any statute. Willoughby on the Constitution was cited in support of such a stand.[4]

The legal situation has radically changed since this case was submitted for decision. There is a new Labor Code.[5] The Court of Industrial Relations was therein abolished, a National Labor Relations Commission taking its place. What is more, there is no mention of any executive certification of labor disputes to such an agency. Under the circumstances, whatever decision that will be rendered by this Court would be characterized by its rather academic character. A ruling on the merits appears unnecessary and inadvisable. At most, it will be in the nature of an advisory opinion.

WHEREFORE, this petition is dismissed for being moot and academic. No costs.

Makalintal, C.J., Barredo, Fernandez, and Aquino, JJ., concur.

Antonio, J., is on sick leave.

[1] The other respondent is the Development Bank of the Philippines.

[2] Cf. Article VII of the 1935 Constitution.

[3] Republic Act No. 875 (1953).

[4] 3 Willoughby 1487 (1929).

[5] Presidential Decree No. 442 (1974).

ABOUT BATAS.ORG

Study smarter at BATAS.org

The Philippine bar review and law-school companion built around how your brain actually remembers.

The complete Philippine law library - free for everyone.

More than 100,000 Supreme Court decisions, Republic Acts, and executive issuances - full-text searchable, browsable by category and year, and always free. No paywall, no login. This PDF came from it.

Audio case-brief lectures.

Any decision becomes a podcast-style lecture - facts, issues, ruling, and doctrine - with read-along highlighting and a hands-free presentation mode. Study while commuting, working out, or resting your eyes.

Bar review built on the science of memory.

Complete, sequenced courses for all eight bar subjects, narrated like podcasts and reinforced with retrieval practice and spaced review - the study techniques with the strongest evidence behind them.

The full law-school curriculum.

One subscription unlocks the entire J.D. curriculum - every subject, every lesson, with your progress tracked down to the paragraph so you can pick up exactly where you left off, on any device.

Mock exams that tell you where you stand.

Timed multiple-choice exams graded instantly, with per-subject score breakdowns and focus suggestions that point you at your weakest topics first.

A study planner that keeps you on pace.

Set your schedule and BATAS tells you every day whether you are on track for bar day - and exactly which lesson to take next.

Start free at <https://batas.org>

The law library is free forever - and your first lesson is one click away.

The text of this document is an official public record and remains in the public domain. Formatting, presentation, and compilation © 2026 batas.org.

Downloaded free from the batas.org Law Library. Share it freely - the library is free for every law student, bar reviewee, and practitioner.