WHEREAS, the new government is committed to pursue a policy of agricultural development so as to provide adequate and continuous food supply to the nation;

WHEREAS, basic food sufficiency will be assured only if the grains industry, inclusive of the procurement, storage and marketing of rice, corn and other grains, receives the support mechanism and attention it deserves.

WHEREAS, the National Food Authority (NFA), the agency particularly tasked to assure the adequacy of food supply, must be strengthened to enhance its efficiency in the performance of its primary task;

WHEREAS, there is therefore an immediate need to transfer the NFA from the Department of Agriculture to the Office of the President to enable the NFA to pursue its mandate more effectively and expeditiously;
