AUTHORED BY: Councilor ROVIN ANDREW M. FELICIANO

WHEREAS, in a research study conducted by the Food and Nutrition Research Institute (FNRI) regarding the nutrition status of children aged 10 to 19 years old, the National Capital Region garnered the most percentage of obese children more than any other region of the country;

WHEREAS, the National Nutrition Council basing its inferences from the FNRI study had observed that such a situation stems from the proliferation of improper food (junk food) easily available to the younger generation in the NCR;

WHEREAS, such a situation has led to the rising occurrences of young children being affected by chronic illnesses such as asthma, diabetes, abnormally high blood pressures, and emotional depressions which can all be correlated to malnutrition;

WHEREAS, the gustatory preferences developed by a young person during his early school years may very well be carried into adulthood and thus the proper food preferences of a child must be guided during this period;

WHEREAS, in the face of existing legislative regulations which prevent the outright banning of improper food currently available for purchase and consumption even by children, alternative courses of legislative actions must be taken to protect our youth.

NOW, THEREFORE, be it ordained as it is hereby ORDAINED by the Sangguniang Panglungsod of Valenzuela in formal session assembled that:

SECTION 1. SCOPE. This ordinance is directed towards all educational institutions public and private schools, regardless of educational scope and size, commercial establishments dealing in food products including all forms of food vendors, and all local government institutions and facilities.

SECTION 2. DEFINITION OF TERMS. For purposes of clarity and legal interpretation the following terms used in this ordinance will be understood as follows:

- "Educational Institutions" - pertain to all schools privately or government operated, of whatever educational scope, including tutorial institution but only limited to pre-school, elementary school and high school or land area occupied.
