

THE PEOPLE OF THE PHILIPPINES, PLAINTIFF-APPELLEE, VS.
FERNANDO URGEL ALIAS &#8220;NANDONG&#8221;;
DEFENDANT-APPELLANT.

G.R. No. 34851. February 25, 1985

Ponente: DE LA FUENTE, J.

Read online (full-text search, related cases, audio case brief): <https://batas.org/library/g-r-no-34851/>

---

DE LA FUENTE, J.:

Appeal in Criminal Case No. 82 (CFI Leyte) interposed by the accused Fernando Urgel who, after trial, was found guilty beyond reasonable doubt of murder and sentenced to suffer the penalty of reclusion perpetua there being no aggravating or mitigating circumstance, and to indemnify the heirs of the deceased Gualberto Guihapon in the amount of P12,000.00;[1]

As summarized in the appellee's brief, the pertinent facts are as follows:

"At about past eight o'clock in the evening of November 23, 1969 at the poblacion of Javier, Leyte (p. 6, TSN, August 21, 1970), the deceased Gualberto Guihapon and his wife Honorata Leonor were walking (p. 7, TSN, August 21, 1970) on their way home after coming from the public market where they bought rice (p. 6, TSN, August 20, 1970). Upon reaching a corner of the street, appellant coming from behind hacked Gualberto Guihapon with a bolo (pp. 6-7, TSN, August 21, 1970) and when he turned around, appellant hacked him for the second time hitting him on the face (Ibid). Guihapon, after being hacked twice by appellant, fell to the ground where he later died (Ibid). Appellant then just walked away (p. 8, TSN, Ibid).

"The hacking incident was witnessed by the wife of the deceased who was about three meters behind her late husband when appellant hacked her husband (p. 7, TSN, August 2, 1970).

"Appellant executed an extra-judicial confession (Exhibit A) admitting the killing before the municipal judge of Javier, Leyte (pp. 1-4, TSN, July 24, 1970)."[2]

The information filed by the Provincial Fiscal described the wounds of the deceased as follows:

"1 Hack wound at the head starting from the left side of the frontal region extending to the bridge of the nose and the right cheek bone.

Measurement:

Length - 5 inches

Width - 1/4 inch

Depth - 1-1/2 inches

"2 Hack wound at the nape.

Measurement:

Length - 4 inches

Width - 2 inches

Depth - 3 inches"

The lone prosecution eyewitness was Honorata Leonor, wife of the deceased Guihapon, who gave testimony in support of the version of the prosecution. The extra-judicial confession (Exhibit A) of the accused was sworn to before Municipal Judge Nicomedez Tupaz who testified that he translated its contents into the Visayan dialect, a language which the accused understood, before inquiring as to the truth of the recitals of Exhibit A. He was answered by the accused in the affirmative.

The following are the pertinent replies of the accused to the questions of the Officer-in-Charge of the Javier Police Department:

"6.

Q -

Why are you here now in the office of the Chief of Police?

A -

Because I have killed one Gualberto Guihapon last 23 November 1969, at about 10:00 p.m. more or less in the poblacion of Javier, Leyte.

"7.

Q -

Are you sure that you were the one who killed Gualberto Guihapon?

A -

Yes, sir, I was the one who killed Gualberto Guihapon last 23 November 1969, at about 10:00 P.M. more or less in the poblacion of Javier, Leyte."[3]

Four witnesses were presented by the defense to establish that the accused-appellant could not have hacked to death the deceased because during the entire evening of November 23, 1969, and until the following morning, there was a novena in the house of his sister Teodora Urgel at Bo. San Jose, Dulag, Leyte, where he helped her in attending to the people who came for said novena and in preparing their supper. Aside from the defense of alibi, the accused-appellant repudiated his extra-judicial confession (Exh. A) on the ground that it was not voluntary. He claimed that he was maltreated by a PC Sgt. Brazil who allegedly squeezed together his fingers after inserting three cartridges between them, causing unbearable pain.

The trial court rejected both submissions.

In his appeal, the accused-appellant has faulted the trial court for "giving credence to the testimony of the alleged lone eyewitness, the wife of the deceased," for "relying mainly on the alleged confession of the accused," and for "not considering the testimony of the defense witnesses" and "rejecting the defense of alibi. . ."

These alleged errors boil down to two issues: First, the credibility of witnesses and their testimonies. Second, the admissibility of appellant's extra-judicial confession.

To begin with, the trial court's findings involving the credibility of witnesses are generally accorded great respect,[4] the matter of assigning values to their testimonies being best performed by the one who can weigh such testimony in the light of the demeanor, conduct and attitude of the witnesses during the trial. It is incumbent upon the appellant to convince the appellate court that a departure from such rule is justified upon a satisfactory showing that the trial court overlooked, misunderstood or misapplied some facts or circumstances of weight and substance as would alter the result.[5] Appellant failed to do so.

We are not inclined to disturb the trial court's findings which placed reliance on the credible testimony of the wife of the deceased. Several days delay in the execution of her affidavit wherein she pointed to the accused as the person who inflicted the wounds which caused the death of her deceased husband is certainly not sufficient reason to discredit or doubt her testimony. Said delay was, as observed by the Solicitor General, due to the cumulative effect of her traumatic shock in finding herself suddenly a widow with six children to support; and the urgency of attending to the burial arrangements for her late husband. Aside from the fact that she had no sufficient schooling and could not read, write or even sign her name, she lived in a remote sitio not easily accessible to the law enforcement officers. And being the wife of the deceased, the police investigators probably saw no necessity to reduce to writing, immediately, what she told them about the incident, particularly the identity of the assailant.

A defense witness, on the other hand, testified that he saw the person who hacked the deceased and afterwards ran towards said witness before disappearing along the left side of the road. But, admittedly, this witness did not recognize the alleged assailant; he merely described the latter as "shorter" and "stouter" than the accused-appellant. In refusing to give credence to the testimony of this witness, the court a quo committed no reversible error in the light of improbabilities and/or inconsistencies readily apparent from a perusal of the transcript.[6]

That the prosecution's eyewitness was the widow of the deceased, without more, is not reason enough to label or consider her testimony biased and unworthy of credence. It does not affect her credibility.[7] The hacking incident took place while she was walking a few meters behind her husband. She saw what happened at close range. Despite her relationship to the victim, she would not just testify falsely against a person and impute to him the crime of murder if she was not certain that he really was the man who hacked her husband to death in her presence. This conclusion is bolstered by the fact that the accused-appellant was her husband's nephew. Besides, her supposed motive -- her alleged failure to collect her deceased husband's wages from the accused-appellant -- was too trivial to be seriously considered. Accordingly, her testimony against the accused-appellant deserves full faith and credit.

As regards appellant's alibi, it would suffice to say that such defense must yield to and cannot prevail over the positive identification made by an eyewitness, the wife of the deceased.[8] Nevertheless, we have examined carefully the evidence adduced.

We find no clear and patent inconsistency between the relative weight assigned by the trial judge to the testimonies of appellant and his witnesses to establish such defense, on the one hand, and the evidence on record, on the other. Thus, it cannot be said that there was no rational basis for the trial court's rejection of the defense of alibi.[9]

It is pertinent to point out, too, that the appellant merely sought to establish by his evidence that he was at another place at the time the deceased was hacked to death without showing the impossibility of his presence at the scene of the crime at the particular moment when it was committed. In cases where the accused failed to establish that it was physically impossible for him to be at the scene of the crime and to show improper motive on the part of the witnesses who identified said accused, the defense of alibi cannot be sustained.[10]

Finally, the trial court a quo did not err in disbelieving the claim that appellant's confession was not voluntary. As stressed by the Solicitor General, the municipal judge before whom the appellant swore to the truthfulness and voluntariness of his confession testified to such fact. Appellant admitted this; and he did not complain to said municipal judge of any maltreatment. On cross-examination, appellant likewise admitted that he did not inform his counsel during the preliminary investigation that his extra-judicial confession was due to maltreatment. Indeed, his bare allegation of maltreatment is not supported by any credible proof. Appellant has not sufficiently overcome the presumption as to the voluntariness of his extra-judicial confession.[11]

WHEREFORE, with the modification of the indemnity which is hereby increased to P30,000.00, the judgment a quo should be, as it is hereby, AFFIRMED in all other respects.

SO ORDERED.

Teehankee, (Chairman), Melencio-Herrera, Plana, Relova, Gutierrez, Jr., and Alampay, JJ., concur.

---

[1] Rollo, pp. 32-33.

[2] Appellee's Brief, p. 2.

[3] Underscoring supplied; Exhibit A, see Rollo, p. 9.

[4] People vs. Mendoza, 121 SCRA 149; People vs. Chavez, 121 SCRA 806; People vs. Alison, 122 SCRA 9; People vs. Galicia, 123 SCRA 550.

[5] People vs. Mendoza, supra.

[6] TSN of September 9, 1970:

"FISCAL:

"Q: And when you saw Gualberto Guihapon stabbed by that person, you immediately became afraid?

"A: Yes, sir.

"Q: What did you immediately think of doing?

"A: To be far from the person and to go towards the left side.

"Q: And when you saw him coming towards your direction, was he running?

"A: He was running but not fast. (Page 11)

xxx xxx xxx

"Q: And you saw that it was a bolo he was holding in his hand?

"A: Yes.

"Q: But nevertheless you did not think of getting away from the road?

"A: That is why he escaped to the left at a distance of the width of the road. (Ibid)

"COURT:

xxx xxx xxx

"Q: In other words, do we understand from you that it was at that distance of 40 to 50 meters that you saw Gualberto Guihapon stabbed by that person?

"A: Yes.

"Q: And when you saw this Gualberto Guihapon hacked by this person, you immediately stopped walking?

"A: Instead, I hurried.

"Q: You hurried proceeding toward the direction where the stabbing was taking place?

"A: Yes, Sir.

"Q: But you did not tell us that you were afraid?

"A: I was afraid, that is why I hurried towards Gualberto to see what happened to him so that I could escape to the houses near as the other person was running towards Javier.

"Q: So you were afraid of what you saw?

"A: I was afraid.

"Q:

But even if you were afraid, you still proceeded to the place where Gualberto Guihapon was hacked?

"A: Yes, because it was on my way.

"Q: Even if you saw that the one who hacked him was going your direction you also went towards him, towards that direction?

A: "Yes, your Honor because he was on the other side of the road.

"FISCAL: And you said that you were afraid, you were afraid that you will also be stabbed or killed?

"A: Yes. (Ibid)

xxx xxx xxx

"FISCAL: How about running back to town?

"A: The houses were apart.

"COURT: What if the houses are far?

"A: I might have been overtaken by the one who stabbed.

"FISCAL: So, you still decided to meet him at a distance?

"A: Yes, Sir." (page 12).

[7] See People vs. Pueblos, 127 SCRA 746; People vs. Maruhom, L-28691, prom. September 28, 1984, etc.

[8] See People vs. Alcantara, 126 SCRA 425.

[9] See People vs. Candado, 84 SCRA 508.

[10] People vs. Sambangan, 125 SCRA 726; People vs. Atanacio, 128 SCRA 22; People vs. Alcantara, supra.

[11] People vs. Sambangan, supra.

ABOUT BATAS.ORG

Study smarter at BATAS.org

The Philippine bar review and law-school companion built around how your brain actually remembers.

The complete Philippine law library - free for everyone.

More than 100,000 Supreme Court decisions, Republic Acts, and executive issuances - full-text searchable, browsable by category and year, and always free. No paywall, no login. This PDF came from it.

Audio case-brief lectures.

Any decision becomes a podcast-style lecture - facts, issues, ruling, and doctrine - with read-along highlighting and a hands-free presentation mode. Study while commuting, working out, or resting your eyes.

Bar review built on the science of memory.

Complete, sequenced courses for all eight bar subjects, narrated like podcasts and reinforced with retrieval practice and spaced review - the study techniques with the strongest evidence behind them.

The full law-school curriculum.

One subscription unlocks the entire J.D. curriculum - every subject, every lesson, with your progress tracked down to the paragraph so you can pick up exactly where you left off, on any device.

Mock exams that tell you where you stand.

Timed multiple-choice exams graded instantly, with per-subject score breakdowns and focus suggestions that point you at your weakest topics first.

A study planner that keeps you on pace.

Set your schedule and BATAS tells you every day whether you are on track for bar day - and exactly which lesson to take next.

Start free at <https://batas.org>

The law library is free forever - and your first lesson is one click away.

The text of this document is an official public record and remains in the public domain. Formatting, presentation, and compilation © 2026 batas.org.

Downloaded free from the batas.org Law Library. Share it freely - the library is free for every law student, bar reviewee, and practitioner.