

PEOPLE OF THE PHILIPPINES, PLAINTIFF-APPELLEE, VS. XXX AND YYY, ACCUSED-APPELLANTS.

G.R. Nos. 137278-79. February 17, 2003

Ponente: QUISUMBING, J.

Read online (full-text search, related cases, audio case brief): <https://batas.org/library/g-r-nos-137278-79/>

QUISUMBING, J.:

On appeal is the consolidated judgment[1] of the Regional Trial Court of Sorsogon, Sorsogon, Branch 52, dated September 7, 1998, in Criminal Cases Nos. 95-3918-19, finding herein appellants XXX and YYY guilty of rape and sentencing them to suffer the penalty of reclusion perpetua.

The young victim in these cases, AAA,[2] is related to the appellants. YYY is the brother of her mother, while XXX is the second husband of AAA's maternal grandmother. She was staying at the house of the appellant YYY, where appellant XXX likewise resided, at the time of the rapes complained of.

On June 6, 1995, the Office of the Provincial Prosecutor for Sorsogon filed an information for rape against appellant XXX. Docketed as Criminal Case No. 95-3918, the accusatory portion of the charge sheet read as follows:

That on or about the 15[th] day of December, 1994, at about 12:00 o'clock noon at Barangay xxxxxxxxxxxx, Municipality of xxxxxxxxxxxx, Province of Sorsogon, Philippines, and within the jurisdiction of this Honorable Court, the above-named accused, armed with a bladed instrument, with lewd designs and by means of force, violence and/or intimidation, did then and there, willfully, unlawfully and feloniously have carnal knowledge of one AAA, a 15 year old minor, against her will and consent, to the damage and prejudice of the latter.

CONTRARY TO LAW.[3]

That same day, another information for the same offense was filed against appellant YYY. Docketed as Criminal Case No. 95-3919, it averred:

That on or about the 31[st] day of May 1994 at about 12:00 o'clock midnight and for several occasions and dates thereafter, at barangay xxxxxxxxxxxx, Municipality of xxxxxxxxxxxx, Province of Sorsogon, Philippines, and within the jurisdiction of this Honorable Court, the above-named accused, armed with a knife, with lewd designs and by means of force, violence and/or intimidation, did then and there, willfully, unlawfully, and feloniously have carnal knowledge of one AAA, a 15 year old minor, against her will and consent, to the damage and prejudice of the latter.

CONTRARY TO LAW.[4]

On July 27, 1995, appellant XXX was arraigned in Criminal Case No. 95-3918 and with assistance of counsel, pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Appellant YYY was, in turn, arraigned on September 25, 1995 and duly assisted by counsel de officio, likewise entered a plea of not guilty.

The two cases were then consolidated and jointly tried.

The prosecution presented two witnesses: xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, a paternal first cousin of the victim, and the private complainant, AAA.

xxxxxxxxxxxxxx testified that on April 17, 1995, she paid the victim a visit at appellant YYY's house in xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, Sorsogon.[5] xxxxxxxxxxxxx noticed that private complainant was pregnant.[6] When xxxxxxxxxxxxx asked AAA about her pregnancy, the latter revealed that she was raped by appellant YYY on May 31, 1994 and on several other occasions thereafter.[7] AAA further disclosed to her that on December 15, 1994, appellant XXX also raped her.[8]

After learning about the rapes, xxxxxxxxxxxxx then took AAA and her siblings to live with her at Binisitihan Norte, Magallanes, Sorsogon.[9]

On April 17, 1995, xxxxxxxxxxxxx reported the rape of AAA at the Magallanes Police Station where she executed a sworn statement. [10]

xxxxxxxxxxxxxx likewise brought the victim to a doctor where an examination confirmed that she was pregnant.[11] The victim gave birth to a baby boy in 1995.[12]

Private complainant testified that after the death of her father in 1992, she was brought by her mother to xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, Sorsogon to live in the house of her uncle, appellant YYY.[13] At about midnight of May 31, 1994, while complainant was sleeping in said house, YYY undressed her and placed himself on top of her.[14] She was awakened and found herself in the nude. She tried to resist appellant but she was overpowered when he poked a knife at her neck.[15] Appellant then thrust his phallus into her vagina[16] and "let it in and let it out." [17] AAA felt pain and her private parts bled as a result.[18] After, YYY had satiated his libidinous desires, he warned her not to tell anybody about the incident, as otherwise, he would kill her and her siblings.[19]

AAA also claimed that on the night of December 15, 1994, while she was sleeping at YYY's house, her grandmother's husband, XXX, placed himself on top of her and inserted his penis inside her vagina.[20] She was not able to resist as XXX threatened to kill her and her siblings, if she would report the matter. [21] Although it was dark, she was able to recognize XXX by his voice and underarm odor.[22]

Despite the threats, AAA reported the incidents to her mother and her grandmother. The mother did nothing while the grandmother struck her with a piece of bamboo and told her not to make any fuss lest the matter reach the barrio folks of xxxxxxxxxxxxx.[23] AAA then revealed her plight to her cousin, prosecution witness xxxxxxxxxxxxx, and her aunt, xxxxxxxxxxxxx.[24] The two took her and her siblings away from the house of appellant YYY, reported the matter to the police, and had her examined by a doctor who advised her that she was pregnant. She delivered a boy on August 25, 1995.[25] At the time she was raped, AAA was only 15 years old.[26]

Appellants raised the defenses of denial and alibi.

In his defense, appellant YYY testified that on May 31, 1994, he was in the barangay proper of xxxxxxxxxxxxx having a drinking spree with his friends Rowan Perdigon, Ryan de los Santos, and Noel de los Santos.[27] They started drinking gin from four o'clock in the afternoon to ten o'clock in the evening.[28] They consumed a dozen bottles of gin. He then staggered home and upon reaching his house, he fell into a drunken sleep.[29] He only woke up the following morning. At that time, there were 13 persons inside his house, which had two rooms.[30] He slept alone while the rest slept side by side.[31] He denied raping AAA. He likewise denied executing a counter-affidavit which stated that he was ready to marry AAA as she was carrying his child.[32]

For his part, appellant XXX declared that he could not have raped AAA on December 15, 1994 since on that date he was in Sorsogon, Sorsogon buying bamboo to be used in the mussel farm (tahungan) of a certain Zaldy.[33] He worked at said mussel farm from May 30, 1994 to January 1, 1995.[34] It was only on the latter date that he found time to return to xxxxxxxxxxxx and he stayed there only for three days. Afterwards, he returned to Sorsogon, Sorsogon. XXX could not think of any reason why the victim should charge him with rape.[35] He said he treated her like his own child and even sent her to school.[36] He was also unaware of any bad blood between him and xxxxxxxxxxxx.[37]

To corroborate appellant XXX's alibi his wife, Rosalina YYY, testified that from May 1994 to December 1994, he was in Sorsogon, Sorsogon.[38] It was only on January 1995 that he visited them.[39] According to Rosalina, her granddaughter, AAA, could not have been raped given the circumstance that she slept side by side with several persons. There were 12 persons who called YYY's house their home. AAA slept close to the room of the XXX, according to Rosalina. She could see AAA from their room, if any of the appellants approached her at night,[40] said the witness.

On September 7, 1998, the trial court promulgated its consolidated decision, thus:

WHEREFORE, premises considered, the Court finds accused XXX in Criminal Case No. 95-3918 and YYY in Criminal Case No. 95-3919 guilty beyond reasonable doubt of the crime of Rape under Art. 335 [of the Revised Penal Code] and hereby sentences each of them [to] the penalty of RECLUSION PERPETUA and to pay the sum of P50,000.00 each as civil indemnity and P10,000.00 as moral damages to the complainant without subsidiary imprisonment in case of insolvency and to pay the cost.

In the service of their sentence, they shall be credited with the full period of their confinement pursuant to law.

SO ORDERED.[41]

Before us, appellants now appeal their conviction, imputing to the trial court the following errors:

I

THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN RELYING HEAVILY ON THE INCREDIBLE TESTIMONY OF PRIVATE COMPLAINANT AAA.

II

THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN NOT ACQUITTING THE ACCUSED-APPELLANTS ON THE GROUND THAT HIS (sic) GUILT WAS NOT PROVED BEYOND REASONABLE DOUBT.

III

THE TRIAL COURT GRAVELY ERRED IN CONVICTING ACCUSED-APPELLANT XXX DESPITE THE FACT THAT HE WAS NOT SUFFICIENTLY IDENTIFIED.[42]

In sum, we find the issues to be: (1) the credibility of complaining witness; (2) the sufficiency of the prosecution's evidence; and (3) the identification of appellant XXX as one of the rapists.

Appellants submit that the first and second issues are interrelated, hence jointly discussed.

On the first and second issues, appellants assail AAA's testimony as unworthy of belief and hence, a flimsy ground for their conviction. In describing private complainant's testimony as "incredible," they ask us to note the fact that both times when she was allegedly raped, complainant was lying beside and very close to her siblings. Yet neither her brother nor her sister was awakened. Appellants assert that this is very much contrary to common knowledge and human experience. Appellants argue that it is difficult to believe that appellants raped her at times when almost all members of the family were present in the house.

For the appellee, the Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) points out jurisprudence has recognized that rape can take place in circumstances of crowding similar to that of the instant cases. Appellants cannot exonerate themselves by claiming that the crimes charged could not possibly take place since there were several other persons present inside the house. Precedents abound undermining appellants' contention.

The presence of people nearby is no guarantee that rape will not be committed, for lust is no respecter of time and place.[43] Rape has been committed in places where people congregate, like parks or school premises and even in a house where there are other occupants.[44] There is no rule or norm that a woman can only be raped in seclusion.[45] It has been committed in a room adjacent to where other members of the family stay or in a room, which the victim shared with others.[46] We have more than once observed that rape could take place in the same room where other members of the family were sleeping.[47] In the instant cases, both rapes complained of were committed in the middle of the night. It is of judicial notice that it is at this time when children are in deep slumber and could not be easily awakened.[48] The fact that AAA's siblings were not awakened at the times she was ravished is not improbable. Hence, appellants' thesis that it was impossible for them to have committed the rape in the presence of private complainant's siblings who were sleeping next to her deserves scant consideration.

Appellants ask us to discredit private complainant's testimony because she was inconsistent in her account. They point out that when she testified as to how YYY raped her at knifepoint, she initially claimed that he poked a knife at her neck using her right hand, while his left hand was cupped over her mouth. When grilled further, she changed her statement and said that he propped himself up on the mat with his right hand. Moreover, they say complainant had a poor memory and could hardly remember her birthday. Hence, they conclude that the trial court should have taken great caution in giving credence to her testimony.

The OSG counters that the alleged inconsistency is minor or trivial. It pertains only to peripheral matters. Hence, it cannot impair private complainant's credibility as a witness.

In ruling upon AAA's credibility, the trial court found her testimony to be "forthright, clear, and free from serious contradictions." [49] The trial court's assessment of complainant's credibility, considering that it had the advantage of observing her demeanor as she testified, is not easily discarded. The trial court judge is in the best position to determine the truthfulness of the complainant's testimony. Unless it is shown that the trial court overlooked, misunderstood, or misapplied some fact or circumstance of weight or substance that would otherwise affect the result of the case, its findings will not be disturbed on appeal.[50] We find no compelling reason now to depart from said rule. We have carefully read the victim's testimony and find that the discrepancy harped upon by appellants focused more on her account of events immediately preceding the rape by YYY. They did not zero in on her narration of the crime itself. Complainant's testimony may not be flawless, but its substance, veracity, and weight were unaffected by the triviality of the alleged inconsistency.

What is material here is AAA's testimony on how she was sexually abused. She positively identified appellants in open court as her ravishers without any hesitation. Indeed, where the accusing words come from a girl of tender years and they are directed against her own relatives, they are difficult to disbelieve. We further note that AAA broke out in tears while testifying.[51] The crying of a victim during her testimony is evidence of the truth of the rape charges, for the display of such emotion indicates the pain that the victim feels when asked to recount her traumatic experience.[52] AAA testified in a categorical, straightforward, and frank manner, and she remained consistent under cross-examination. The inescapable conclusion is that she is a credible witness. The sole testimony of a rape victim, if credible, suffices to convict.[53]

On the third issue, appellant XXX argues that his identification by complaining witness as her rapist on December 15, 1994 is doubtful and cannot serve as the basis of his conviction, as it was undisputed that the room where he supposedly raped AAA had no illumination. Hence, assuming arguendo, that she was indeed raped, it was improbable for her to positively identify him as her assailant given the total darkness of the surroundings. She only presumed that it was him on account of his underarm odor. XXX contends that it would be unjust to conclude that he was the real culprit on account of his underarm odor. After all, he is not the only person with that smell.

The OSG, however, points out that private complainant was able to identify XXX not just from his underarm smell but also from his voice. She was familiar with both, as the two of them had been living in the same house for at least four years prior to her rape by XXX. Her identification of XXX must be deemed both sufficient and indubitable, said the OSG.

Appellant XXX's bid for exoneration on the theory of doubtful identification, in our view, is an exercise in futility. The absence of illumination in the place of the commission of the crime does not detract from the positive identification by AAA of XXX as her ravisher. Although visibility is an important factor in the identification of a felon, its relative significance depends largely on the attending circumstances and the discretion of the trial court.[54] We have held that the sense of smell, in the right circumstances, might be a reliable mode of identification, but it could also prove to be tenuous if it were the sole source of identification under circumstances that leave much room for other probabilities to contend with.[55] In the case against XXX, there is not much room to doubt the positive identification on account of the victim's olfactory faculties.

The prosecution's case against XXX is founded on AAA's familiarity with him. If she was not at all familiar with appellant XXX, the prosecution's whole case against him collapses, for such familiarity was its very foundation. In the instant case, it was not disputed that AAA had lived in the same house with XXX for almost four years prior to the incident. In fact, XXX himself testified that he had treated her like a daughter and was even responsible for her schooling. [56] Thus, the basis for her identification was her long familiarity with XXX. She pointed to him because she knew him well prior to the sexual assault. AAA was familiar with his body smell. No doubt she could perceive and recognize that smell at the time of sexual contact. At that time, private complainant was as close to XXX as was physically possible, for a man and a woman could not be physically closer to each other than during a sexual act.[57] Moreover, the victim did not solely rely upon her sense of smell in identifying her ravisher. She emphatically declared in open court that she also recognized XXX from his voice [58] when he uttered threatening words to her in the dark. It is highly inconceivable that complainant would not recognize XXX's voice, having lived with him for quite some time. The sound of the voice of a person is an acceptable means of identification where it is established that the witness and the accused knew each other personally and closely for a number of years.[59]

We find no reason to doubt the accuracy of the identification of the malefactor based on auditory and olfactory perception by the victim on December 15, 1994. Under the circumstances, AAA was able to perceive who her rapist was and to make known that perception. Nor is there any reason to doubt her sincerity to tell the truth, for there is no showing at all by the defense that she charged XXX with rape due to an evil or corrupt motive.

In sum, the defense of denial and alibi interposed by appellants cannot prevail over their positive identification by the victim. It is a time-honored principle that the positive and categorical assertions of a witness generally prevail over bare denials.[60] In the case against YYY, greater probative value and evidentiary weight must be accorded to AAA's unwavering and categorical identification of appellant YYY as one of her tormentors over this appellant's feeble, self-serving, and uncorroborated denial. Affirmative testimony from a credible witness is stronger and more trustworthy than a bare negative testimony.[61]

Equally unmeritorious is appellant XXX's alibi that he could not have raped AAA because he was in Sorsogon, Sorsogon from May 1994 to January 1995. For alibi to prosper, appellant must not only prove that he was somewhere else when the crime was committed, he must also convincingly demonstrate the physical impossibility of his presence at the locus criminis at the time of the incident.[62] In XXX's case, it was not physically impossible for XXX to have been at the crime scene at the time the rape was committed, in view of the trial court's observation that:

It is of judicial notice that the poblacion of Magallanes can be reached thru a jeep, which is the means of transportation from the town of Sorsogon for about one (1) hour only. Accused did not even present the person he resides with while in Sorsogon. [63]

That XXX's wife corroborated his alibi is no moment. No other witness unrelated to appellant XXX was presented to corroborate his claim. Alibi cannot prosper if it is established mainly by the accused and his relatives, and not by credible persons.[64] This is because alibi is easy to contrive and difficult to disprove.[65]

Rape is committed when a man has carnal knowledge of a victim with the use of force and intimidation.[66] In both cases, AAA credibly testified on the details of her harrowing experiences and positively identified the appellants as the persons who raped her. The evidence for the prosecution has established beyond reasonable doubt the elements of carnal knowledge and force or intimidation. Hence, we must sustain the conviction of both appellants and deny their respective appeals.

But did the trial court correctly impose the penalty of reclusion perpetua on appellants?

The OSG disagrees only in regard to appellant YYY. It recommends the imposition of the death penalty on him. The OSG argues that with the amendment of the Revised Penal Code by R.A. No. 8353,[67] rape was reclassified as a crime against persons. Under Article 266-B[68] of the Revised Penal Code, as so amended, rape is now punishable with reclusion perpetua to death whenever the rape is committed with the use of a deadly weapon. The OSG stresses that the qualifying circumstance of deadly weapon was proven with respect to appellant YYY. Moreover, according to the OSG, the relationship of AAA with YYY, while not alleged in the information, was nonetheless proven during the trial and now should be considered as a generic aggravating circumstance, for purposes of imposing the penalty. With the presence of the qualifying circumstance of use of a deadly weapon in the commission of the rape coupled with the generic aggravating circumstance of relationship, without any mitigating circumstance, then the proper penalty for appellant YYY should be death, the OSG said.

As the OSG points out, since appellant YYY committed the rape with the use of knife, a deadly weapon, the crime is punishable by reclusion perpetua to death.[69] However, the OSG's stance that the relationship between YYY (uncle) and AAA (niece) should be treated as a generic aggravating circumstance to justify imposing the death penalty is precipitate.

Under Sections 8[70] and 9[71] Rule 110 of the 2000 Revised Rules of Criminal Procedure, a qualifying or aggravating circumstance must first be specifically alleged in the information and then duly proved during the trial. Otherwise, even if proved, such a circumstance cannot be appreciated in determining the proper penalty.[72]

In Criminal Case No. 95-3919, the relationship between YYY and his victim was not alleged in the information. Hence, for purposes of determining the penalty to be imposed, the relationship even if proved during the trial, should not be considered as a generic aggravating circumstance. The 2000 Revised Rules of Criminal Procedure, providing that aggravating circumstances, whether ordinary or qualifying, must be so stated in the complaint or information,[73] applies to the cases against appellants under the principle of retroactivity of procedural law because the rules favor the accused. Since no aggravating circumstance could be appreciated in the commission of rape in Criminal Case No. 95-3919, the trial court did not err in applying Article 63 (2)[74] of the Revised Penal Code by imposing on appellant YYY only the penalty of reclusion perpetua.

Concerning damages awarded below, we find that the trial court awarded P50,000.00 as civil indemnity but only P10,000.00 as moral damages to the victim. The amount awarded as civil indemnity is sufficient but moral damages should be increased to P50,000.00 in accordance with current jurisprudence.[75] The award of P25,000.00 as exemplary damages should be sustained, by way of public example and to prevent minors from being sexually abused[76] by their elders.

WHEREFORE, the consolidated judgment of the Regional Trial Court of Sorsogon, Sorsogon, Branch 52, in Criminal Cases Nos. 95-3918 and 95-3919, finding appellants XXX and YYY guilty of one (1) count of rape each and sentencing them to suffer the penalty of reclusion perpetua is AFFIRMED with MODIFICATION. Each of the appellants is also sentenced to pay the victim, AAA, P50,000.00 as civil indemnity, P50,000.00 as moral damages, and P25,000.00 as exemplary damages, as well as the costs.

SO ORDERED.

Bellosillo, (Chairman), Mendoza, Austria-Martinez, and Callejo, Sr., JJ., concur.

[1] Records, Crim. Case No. 95-3918, pp. 131-135.

[2] Also referred to as “Melany” or “Lanie” in the records.

[3] Supra note 1 at 30.

[4] Records, Crim. Case No. 95-3919, p. 30.

[5] TSN, July 23, 1996, p. 14.

[6] Id. at 14.

[7] Id. at 9-10.

[8] Ibid.

[9] Id. at 10-11.

[10] Exh. “A” and sub-markings, Records, Crim. Case No. 95-3919, p. 4.

[11] TSN, July 23, 1996, p. 11.

[12] Id. at 11-12.

[13] TSN, September 24, 1996, p. 14.

[14] Id. at 9.

[15] Id. at 24.

[16] Id. at 7.

[17] Id. at 8.

[18] Ibid.

[19] Ibid.

[20] Id. at 11-12.

[21] Id. at 12.

[22] Id. at 31.

[23] Id. at 15-16, 18.

[24] Id. at 16.

[25] Exh. "B" and sub-markings, Records, Crim. Case No. 95-3918 p. 88; See TSN, July 23, 1996, p. 11; TSN, September 24, 1996, pp. 19-20.

[26] Exh. "C" and sub-markings, Records, Crim. Case No. 95-3918, p. 89, TSN, July 23, 1996, pp. 17-18.

[27] TSN, August 13, 1997, p. 3.

[28] Ibid.

[29] Id. at 4.

[30] Id. at 6-7.

[31] Id. at 7.

[32] Id. at 22, 25.

[33] TSN, June 18, 1997, p. 3.

[34] Ibid.

[35] Id. at 11.

[36] Id. at 10.

[37] Id. at 14.

[38] TSN, November 4, 1997, p. 2.

[39] Ibid.

[40] Id. at 4.

[41] Rollo, p. 26.

[42] Id. at 63.

[43] See People v. Rodavia, G.R. Nos. 133008-24, February 6, 2002, p. 17, citing People v. Losano, 310 SCRA 707, 722-723 (1999).

[44] People v. Sanchez, G.R. No. 124393, January 31, 2002, p. 12, citing People v. Alitagtag, 368 Phil. 637, 650 (1999).

[45] People v. Tagud, Sr., G.R. No. 140733, January 30, 2002, p. 16, citing People v. Gonzales, 338 SCRA 678, 689 (2000).

[46] People v. Abala, G.R. Nos. 135858-61, July 23, 2002, p. 19, citing People v. Abella, 315 SCRA 36, 43 (1999).

[47] People v. Estomaca, G.R. Nos. 134288-89, January 15, 2002, p. 12, citing People v. Castillo, 335 SCRA 100, 110 (2000) and People v. Ramos, 296 SCRA 559, 571 (1999).

[48] People v. Ponsica, G.R. Nos. 137661-63, July 4, 2002, p. 13, citing People v. Balmoria, 344 SCRA 723, 728 (2000).

[49] Rollo, p. 25.

[50] People v. Dela Cruz, G.R. Nos. 135554-56, June 21, 2002, p. 19, citing People v. Yaoto, G.R. Nos. 136317-18, November 22, 2001, p. 10, People v. Rebato, G.R. No. 139552, May 24, 2001, p. 6, and People v. Saladino, 353 SCRA 819, 826 (2001).

[51] See TSN, September 24, 1996, p. 7.

[52] People v. Manlod, G.R. Nos. 142901-02, July 23, 2002, p. 11, citing People v. Quilatan, 341 SCRA 247, 253 (2000) and People v. Villanos, 337 SCRA 78, 87 (2000); See also People v. Sancha, 324 SCRA 646, 663 (2000).

[53] People v. Capili, G.R. No. 142747, March 12, 2002, p. 8, citing People v. Cura, 240 SCRA 234, 243 (1995).

[54] People v. Cambi, 333 SCRA 305, 313-314 (2000), citing People v. Mendoza, 254 SCRA 61, 74 (1996).

[55] People v. Pajarillo, G.R. Nos. 143755-58, February 20, 2002, p. 13.

[56] TSN, June 18, 1997, p. 10.

[57] People v. Diopita, 346 SCRA 794, 801 (2000), citing People v. Castañeda, 252 SCRA 247, 255 (1996).

[58] TSN, September 24, 1996, pp. 33-34.

[59] People v. Oranza, G.R. No. 127748, July 25, 2002, p. 8, citing People v. Gayomma, 315 SCRA 639, 646 (1999).

[60] People v. Patanayan, Jr., G.R. Nos. 141189-141202, July 23, 2002, p. 24, citing People v. Gonzales, Jr., G.R. Nos. 143143-44, January 15, 2002, p. 22.

[61] See People v. Dela Torre, G.R. No. 98431, January 15, 2002, pp. 13-14. See also People v. Sagun, 303 SCRA 382, 392 (1999), People v. Vaynaco, 305 SCRA 93, 102 (1999), People v. Quiñanola, 306 SCRA 710, 731 (1999), and People v. Antonio, 303 SCRA 414 (1999).

[62] People v. Lachica, G.R. No. 143677, May 9, 2002, pp. 17-18, citing People v. Hofileña, 334 SCRA 214, 227 (2000), People v. Legaspi, 331 SCRA 95, 113 (2000), People v. Llanes, 324 SCRA 727, 746 (2000), People v. Rendoque, 322 SCRA 622, 636 (2000), People v. Pontilar, Jr., 275 SCRA 338, 351 (1997), and People v. Barera, 262 SCRA 63, 79 (1996).

[63] Rollo, p. 25.

[64] People v. Vallejo, G.R. No. 144656, May 9, 2002, p. 30, citing People v. Rivera, G.R. No. 139180, July 31, 2001, p. 24.

[65] People v. Sanchez, supra, at 12-13, citing People v. Marfil, 366 Phil. 181, 187 (1999).

[66] Rev. Pen. Code. Art. 335. When and how rape is committed. – Rape is committed by having carnal knowledge of a woman under any of the following circumstances:

- By using force or intimidation;
- When the woman is deprived of reason or otherwise unconscious; and
- When the woman is under twelve years of age or is demented.

x x x

[67] Entitled “An Act Expanding the Definition of the Crime of Rape, Reclassifying the Same as a Crime Against Persons, Amending for the Purpose Act No. 3815, as amended, otherwise known as the RPC, and for Other Purposes.

[68] Art. 266-B. Penalties. – Rape under paragraph 1 of the next preceding article shall be punished by reclusion perpetua.

Whenever the rape is committed with the use of a deadly weapon or by two or more persons, the penalty shall be reclusion perpetua to death.

x x x

[69] See People v. Tagaylo, 345 SCRA 284, 294 (2000).

[70] SEC. 8. Designation of the offense. – The complaint or information shall state the designation of the offense given by the statute, aver the acts or omissions constituting the offense, and specify its qualifying and aggravating circumstances. If there is no designation of the offense, reference shall be made to the section or subsection of the statute punishing it.

[71] SEC. 9. Cause of the accusation. – The acts or omissions complained of as constituting the offense and the qualifying and aggravating circumstances must be stated in ordinary and concise language and not necessarily in the language used in the statute but in terms sufficient to enable a person of common understanding to know what offense is being charged as well as its qualifying and aggravating circumstances and for the court to pronounce judgment.

[72] People v. Soriano, G.R. No. 135027, July 3, 2002, pp. 21-22.

[73] People v. Lachica, supra note 62 at 24-25.

[74] Art. 63. Rules for the application of indivisible penalties. – In all cases in which the law prescribes a single indivisible penalty, it shall be applied by the courts regardless of any mitigating or aggravating circumstances that may have attended the commission of the deed.

In all cases in which the law prescribes a penalty composed of two indivisible penalties, the following rules shall be observed in the application thereof:

x x x

- When there are neither mitigating nor aggravating circumstances in the commission of the deed, the lesser penalty shall be applied.

[75] See People v. Aparejado, G.R. No. 139447, July 23, 2002, p. 11.

[76] People v. Lopez, G.R. No. 134774, April 19, 2002, p. 10.

ABOUT BATAS.ORG

Study smarter at BATAS.org

The Philippine bar review and law-school companion built around how your brain actually remembers.

The complete Philippine law library - free for everyone.

More than 100,000 Supreme Court decisions, Republic Acts, and executive issuances - full-text searchable, browsable by category and year, and always free. No paywall, no login. This PDF came from it.

Audio case-brief lectures.

Any decision becomes a podcast-style lecture - facts, issues, ruling, and doctrine - with read-along highlighting and a hands-free presentation mode. Study while commuting, working out, or resting your eyes.

Bar review built on the science of memory.

Complete, sequenced courses for all eight bar subjects, narrated like podcasts and reinforced with retrieval practice and spaced review - the study techniques with the strongest evidence behind them.

The full law-school curriculum.

One subscription unlocks the entire J.D. curriculum - every subject, every lesson, with your progress tracked down to the paragraph so you can pick up exactly where you left off, on any device.

Mock exams that tell you where you stand.

Timed multiple-choice exams graded instantly, with per-subject score breakdowns and focus suggestions that point you at your weakest topics first.

A study planner that keeps you on pace.

Set your schedule and BATAS tells you every day whether you are on track for bar day - and exactly which lesson to take next.

Start free at <https://batas.org>

The law library is free forever - and your first lesson is one click away.

The text of this document is an official public record and remains in the public domain. Formatting, presentation, and compilation © 2026 batas.org.

Downloaded free from the batas.org Law Library. Share it freely - the library is free for every law student, bar reviewee, and practitioner.