

**Title: G-Tractors, Inc. v. Court of Appeals and Narciso****

**Facts:****

1. **Contract of Lease**: On February 26, 1973, Luis R. Narciso entered into a lease agreement with G-Tractors, Inc., to lease tractors for constructing switchroads and hauling felled trees at his logging concession.
2. **Default on Payments**: Narciso defaulted on rental payments, leading G-Tractors to file a complaint (Civil Case No. Q-19173) on August 15, 1974, before the Court of First Instance of Rizal, seeking P155,410.25 plus interests, damages, attorney's fees, and costs.
3. **Compromise Agreement**: Narciso was declared in default but later proposed a Compromise Agreement, which was accepted, leading to a judgment based on said agreement on October 10, 1974.
4. **Failure to Comply**: On November 29, 1974, G-Tractors moved for execution due to Narciso's failure to comply with the settlement terms; this was granted, and the writ of execution was issued.
5. **Levy and Auction on Personal Properties**: A sheriff levied upon Narciso's personal property, sold it at auction on March 1, 1975, generated P4,090.00; Narciso redeemed this property post-sale by payment to G-Tractors.
6. **Levy on Real Property**: Another levy was issued on February 12, 1975, over a parcel of land presumed to be Narciso's right and interest, disregarding its conjugal nature.
7. **Subsequent Auction and Lease**: Auction sale of the real property was conducted on March 25, 1975, with G-Tractors as the highest bidder. Subsequently, a lease agreement was made with Narciso on the same property.
8. **New LawsUIT by Narciso Spouses**: On March 31, 1976, Luis and Josefina Salak Narciso filed Civil Case No. Q-21267 to nullify the levy on execution and sale, claiming it involved conjugal property improperly.
9. **Consolidation and Deed of Sale**: Despite a pending case (Q-21267), G-Tractors executed a sheriff's final deed of sale, consolidated ownership, and sought a new title.
10. **Court Orders and Appeal**: Despite lower court orders against the Narciso Spouses, they filed for a certiorari with the Court of Appeals (CA-G.R. No. SP-05920), which annulled the execution documents and orders, leading to a permanent writ of injunction.

11. Petition for Supreme Review: Dissatisfied, G-Tractors sought the Supreme Court's review challenging the Court of Appeals' ruling.

Issues:

1. Did the levy and sale include the residential house and improvements?
2. Was Luis R. Narciso's judgment debt a proper liability of the conjugal partnership property?
3. Was there laches or undue delay in the action by the Narciso spouses?
4. Was certiorari the correct remedy?

Court's Decision:

1. Inclusion of Improvements: The Supreme Court held that levying the residential land did not comprehensively cover the house/improvements without specific inclusion, but this was not pivotal for the decision.
2. Conjugal Partnership Liability: The judgment debt was deemed a conjugal liability because Narciso's transactions were seen to benefit the family's business, a legitimate conjugal activity.
3. No Laches: The move by Spouses Narciso was not too delayed as to invoke laches; their legal recourse timing was within permissible limits.
4. Certiorari as Correct Remedy: Given the circumstances involving public auction and property rights, certiorari was legitimate to address potential jurisdiction errors by the lower court.

Doctrine:

The case reiterated Article 161 of the Civil Code concerning the liability of conjugal properties for debts of the husband, emphasizing that legitimate business debts of the husband can charge conjugal properties if they normally benefit the partnership's welfare.

**Class Notes:****

- **Conjugal Debt**: Debts of either spouse for conjugal benefit can charge conjugal properties as per Article 161 of the Civil Code.
- **Laches**: The delay in taking legal action, not defined by rigid timelines but by unjust neglect causing disadvantage.
- **Certiorari**: A remedial measure to correct errors of jurisdiction not determinable by appeal.

**Historical Background:****

During the 1970s, the Philippine legal landscape heavily involved issues on property rights, family law, and debt liabilities, reflecting socio-economic shifts. The case captures the era's contextual emphasis on defining and protecting conjugal property rights, reflecting a broader legislative push towards unifying regulations for family and property laws in the post-colonial legal framework.
